- HSE policies and procedures to ensure safe working environments.

We have a significant supply chain all over the world, working with a whole range of different subcontractors and vendors and we are committed to ensure that our supply chains will comply with the Act.

During 2017, we provided training to our applicable contracts, procurement and supply chain staff within Dril-Quip (Europe) Limited on the Act to help identify any potential slavery and human trafficking and how to respond if slavery or human trafficking is suspected. This process was supervised by our legal department. Dril-Quip (Europe) Limited also included the Act as part of its supplier qualification processes and updated its terms and conditions of purchase to ensure our suppliers have the same commitment to prevent slavery and human trafficking as we do. We will not work with suppliers who do not demonstrate a commitment to compliance with the Act.

In 2018 we will continue to ensure that appropriate training is provided to our personnel where necessary and will periodically review our supply chain procurement practices to ensure compliance with our processes to address the Act.
